BOY ORATOR AT IT AGAIN.

CONNECTICUT AND JERSEY. Stamford Lady Toasted Him as "The In New Haven He Gave Offence by His Flippant Allusions to the Deity Bob Davis Had His Welcome Ready in Jersey City-He'il Never Jilt 16 to 1, Col. William Jennings Bryan made three speeches yesterday in two States. All the peeches were very much alike, and all of them bore a striking resemblance to the speech which he delivered in Baltimore some time ago. For four days he had not made a public talk, and he seemed to enjoy himself thoroughly. The speechmaking activity drove away the headache of which he complained on Tuesday night at the Democratic Club, and he was feeling well last night.

Col. Bryan rose at 8 o'clock yesterday morn-ing and had breakfast at the Hoffman House with some personal friends. After breakfast he packed his grip and started for the Grand Central station in time to catch the 10:02 train for Stamford, Conv. While he was packing he was asked whether he had used up much oil during his stay here.

'I don't know," he replied, "I always try to, you know."

One of the notable features of Col. Bryan's visit to this city was his positive refusal to listen to the suggestion of Democrats now training with him that the next Democratic National Convention should subordinate the free silver issue. Some of these Democrats even went so far as to tell him that it should be dropped entirely. Most of the subordinate Democrats connected with the regular organizations did not hesitate to express this opinion. Col. Bryan refused it, and he took the ground with some that he took in his speeches in Texas last summer. On those occasions he said that, if the free silver issue should be set aside by the Democratic National Convention of 1900, he would leave the Democratic party and start a party of his own. Some of the Democrats talked with yesterday said they did not believe that Mr. Bryan had ever given expression to any such sentiments. The newspapers all over the country, however, in printing stenographic reports of his speeches in Texas recorded him as making that threat. Dr. John H. Girdner and Andrew McClain, a Newburgh follower, accompanied Col. Bryan to the Grand Central Station. Mr. Bryan spent two hours in Stamford. He spoke at 11 o'clock in the Town Hall. The only seats that were vacant were some on the stage which had been reserved for distinguished Democrats. The distinguished Democrats of Stamford are not of the Bryan stripe. It was significant that ex-Mayor W. J. H. Bohannan was not present. Mr Bohannan has recently renounced free silver, The applause which greeted Mr. Bryan was courteous, but not enthusiastic. The speech dwelt upon free silver, trusts and imperialism. After the meeting Mr. Bryan had luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings at Linden Lodge." Mrs. Cummings, who is a daughter of James D. Smith, proposed the toast, "Here's to the Brave," and Mr. Bryan made a pleasing response. Mr. Bryan and party took a train at Gienbrook station for New Haven.

New Haven.

When Mr. Brvan spoke in New Haven in the afternoon he made several allusions to the Deity which grated on the ears of his audience. One of the remarks that fell as flat as the platform on which he stood was this:

"I am satisfied that when God gets ready to reveal this will to the American people He will choose someone other than Mark Hanna to reveal it."

weal it."
Then he said: "I've seen Republicans going up and down the land telling what God's will was, when I was satisfied that if God knew them as well as I did, He would never let them know His business." His jocular assertion that God would become round-shouldered over somelof the responsibilities and car es entrusted to Him was heard in chilly silence.

that God would become round-shouldered over somelof the responsibilities and care seat rusted to Him was heard in chilly silence.

When he touched upon the Boer war and said, "It is a sad day for this country when we can't sympathize with a nation struggling for liberty," the applause was generous. Every other reference or a similar nature to the South African war received applause. He talked for an hour and five minutes and made hardly any reference to 16 to 1. Alexander Troup, the Connecticut member of the National Silver Democratic Committee, presided at the meeting. There were a few women in the audience.

On his return to the Hoffman House Col. Bryan found Congressman "Bill" Daly of Jersey City waiting for him to take him over to the Robert Davis Association for a dinner, to be followed by a speech at St. Peter's Hall. Congressman Daly had a cab ready, into which the Robert Davis Association for a dinner, to be followed by a speech at St. Peter's Hall. Congressman Daly had a cab ready, into which Col. Bryan got, and they went across the Twenty-third street ferry of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In Jersey City Col. Bryan got the most enthusiastic welcome which he has hed in this vicinity on this trip. The Hon. "Bob" Davis, who wanted the Democratic leader to omit all reference to free silver from his speech, had promised to do all that lay in his power to make the reception a success anyway, and his supporters were out in force. There were thirty policemen outside the clubhouse, and they kept orderly a crowd of almost one hundred and fifty persons.

When Col. Bryan's carriage appeared there was a cheer, which was repeated as he walked between the lines of policemen up the steps of the club. The house was full of members of the Association, who cheered loyally as Mr. Davis grasped Col. Bryan's hand. Some of the club members went forward and were introduced. Each of them got a handshake. Then Col. Bryan was escorted to the banquet hail of the club, where a feast had been prepared for him. One of the courses was "English plum pudding with Boer sauce," and the menu cards were printed in silver as a delicate compliment to the guest.

J. Coyle, John Nehl, Christopher P. Smith, Col. Robert S. Smith, P. O'Meara, J. C. Cooper and J. F. Minturn.

The dinner was over by 7:45 o'clock. Then Col. Bryan shook hands with a few more clubmen and got into a carriage to go to the hall. In front of the hall a crowd had begun to collect at 5:30 o'clock, Ten minutes before the Speakers arrived every sent was taken and a goo many persons were standing in the aisles. A young resident of Jersev City, who combs his hair like Col. Bryan, succeded in attracting attention by walking across the stage. He was cheered, and it became evident at once that the crowd was full of enthusiasm for Bryan. His arrival was heralded by the crowd outside with hurrahs. Mr. Davis called the meeting to order, and introduced Mayor Hoos as the presiding officer. Mayor Hoos rapped for order with a glass, and made this speech:

"We have with us this evening a gentleman in our midst, thom we are all glad to see and to have with us. He received the support of $6.000,000 and one-half of the voters of this country. You are all glad to have this man in our midst, I as Chief Magistrate of the city of Jersey City, extend the freedom of the city to Col. Bryan.

This induced the crowd to cheer and stamp, and when Col. Bryan began to speak, he said that the demonstration convinced him that he was wasting time by speaking in Jersey City. Some one interrupted him to call for three cheers for "our next President." These were followed by three cheers for "our next Mayor, R. G. Smith." Col. Bryan apparently decided that stories were what his audience wanted, and he told two that were well received. Then he said:

"I am not going to speak as a candidate and Id not want you to listen as though I were a that stories were what his additional to told two that were well received. Then he said:

"I am not going to speak as a candidate and I do not want you to listen as though I were a candidate, for, no matter what the future has in store for me in the way of offices. I am in politics for years to come, and I rejoice that I am a young man, because in the course of nature I'll have many more years in which to fight the Republicans. But I do not light individual Republicans. But I do not light individual Republicans. But I do not light individual Republicans. A majority of the Republicans are as anxious for good government as are the members of my own party. The only trouble is that the Republican party has put the dollar before the man. The dollar sign is stamped on every Republican policy, and none is genuine unless the sign is blown in the gas. Now, I shall speak to night in answer to this question and I hope there are Republicans here to listen. Are you on the inside? If so, are you sure you are going to stay there?

Col. Bryan then said that in 18%6 the Republican party put the dollar above the man, and that now only moneyed men could get a fair show under Republican rule. He quoted from a letter written by Lincoln in 1859 to the Boston Republicans, in which they were warned not to let capital take precedence of labor. Then he said:

"Let me ask you to look at the fall the Republican party, has taken. There is Lincoln at one good points, "some, perhaps, superior to ours," Col. Bryan then made a plea for an income tax, saying that import duties and internal revenue taxes fell more heavily on the poor than on the rich.

"When we favored an income tax in Congress," he said, "an Eastern Democrat told me it would drive the rich men from the party. I didn't believe any rich Democrat would leave the party because it favored just laws. I didn't know the rich Democrats then as I do now. I thought that the poor Republicans would come in to take their piaces, any way, but I didn't know the poor Republicans as I do now.

"Now I have to pay the regular price for a telegram and one cent more for the benevolent assimilation of the Filipinos. Why? Because the Republican party so made it. Why did it make it so? Because it listened to the telegraph company, not the people. Under Republican administration money is more precious than human blood, for the Government can take the citizen, but the pocketbook is sacred."

Then Col. Bryan began to talk of the glories of free silver, which were applauded by the audience. He said he wouldn't apolagize for speaking of free silver, and Farmer Martine told him he needn't.

"People ask me to drop free silver" he said:
"It wouldn't break if I did. It's bigger than any man. I never make a speech where it is proper to allude to politics without speaking of silver."

Col. Bryan attacked the Republican Currency

Silver."

Col. Bryan attacked the Republican Currency bill, saying it would bind this country to the wheels of English flaance.

"It's an infamous bill." he said. "It's the most infamous ever pressed in Congress. This Congress was elected when Republicans orators were telling us to uphoid the Government in time of war, and while they were saying that the financiers were preparing to hold up the Government."

Col. Bryan said that without the increase

Government."

Col. Bryan said that without the increase of $200,000,000 in the money supply, the Republicans would have been in a very bad way. He said that the sections of the bill retiring the "greenback, which preserved this nation when the gold had fied," and providing for bank issues of paper money, meant "an elastic currency with the bankers holding both ends of the elastic." Great applause greeted the statement: "The banks will make the profits, the toilers will pay the taxes."

banks will make the profits, the tollers will pay the taxes."
Then trusts came in for a whacking. The speaker quoted Senator Hanna's speeches in the Ohlo campaign last fail to show that the Republican party was committed to trusts.
"Until God sends us angels from above to conduct monopolies, no monopoly will be safe."
he said. "What we've seen of the men who run them makes us think that they came from below."

Then he called trusts and corporations the man-made men, who are greater than the God-made men." He repeated his plan for Federal licenses for corporations, and then "solomon has a proverb: 'A prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are punished.' That is too long. I've redrawn it so that it reads: The wise man gets an idea in his head, the foolish man gets it in the neck.' If a man steals a horse, we set bloodhounds after him. If he forms a trust, we give him a banquet. The Republican party has amended the commandment so that it reads: 'Thou shalt not steal on a small scale.'"

Col. Bryan mlaquoted Solomon.
Of imperialism and militarism he spoke next.

Col. Bryan misquoted Solomon.
Of imperialism and militarism he spoke next, saying that the difference between a republic of 70,000,000 and an emptre of 80,000,000 persons was apparently the difference between a standing army of 25,000 and one of 100,000 standing army of 25,000 and one of 100,000 men.

"There are three defences of our policy in the Philippines," he said, "They are these: Financial, or there's money in it; religious, or God's in it; political, or we rein it. It s thilantrophy and 5 per cent.—philantrophy chloroforms the conquerors conscience, while 5 per cent. picks the conqueror's pocket."

"T've seen Republicans going up and down the land telling what God wants," he said a moment later. "If God knew them as well as I do he wouldn't dare to tell them what he wanted."

Then he quoted approvingly a sermon he had

Then he quoted approvingly a sermon he had heard, in which the preacher said that in this country Pilate and Christ stood face to face. Later he asked if we were bound to stay in the Philippines: because Dewey sank a Spanish fleet at Santiago." Col. Bryan made another quotation from the Bible do duty for him in this form: "What shall it profit us though we gain the whole world and lose the spirit of liberty." The following paraphrase was Col. Bryan's last misquotation: "In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea, With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and sive raiment. His jewels of diamonds and rubies, and his expensive kid gloves were the east of his attractions. Among those whom Mr. Mack visited were the Hon. William F. Sheehan, formerly of Buffalo, and the Hon. Jacob A. Cantor, for a number of years Democratic leader of the Senate at Albany. Mr. Mack was on a proselytizing tour. Mr.

Mack was on a proselytizing tour. Mr. Sheehan was National Democratic Committeeman for the State when Mr. Bryan was nominated in 1893. Immediately after Bryan's nomination Mr. Sheehan resigned as Democratic National Committeeman, and joined the ranks of the Gold Democrats. He was succeeded as Democratic National Committeeman by the Hon. Frank Campbell of Bath, a president of banks and associated with Democrats with sound money investments.

The talk that Mr. Mack had with Mr. Cantor is possibly the most interesting. Mr. Mack desired Mr. Cantor to come buck into what he called "The Democratic Fold." Mr. Cantor said that he could not see it that way, and besides that he was not engaging much in politics nowadays. Mr. Cantor refused to be converted, but on the contrary informed his old friend. Mr. Mack, that "if Bryan is nominated this year, as he certainly will be, he will be the worst-beaten man that ever ran for the Presidency." Mr. Cantor went further and told Mr. Mack how workingmen had been employed at good wages during the last three years, and where many workingmen and others supported Mr. Bryan in 1896, Mr. Bryan would have to go without their support this year, as the workingmen and their friends did not desire a change in the National Administration.

Everywhere Mr. Mack went with his fine ministration.

Everywhere Mr. Mack went with his fine raiment and ruby and diamond newels, and neatly fitting kid gloves, he was greated by the same testimony. In all banking circles Mr. Mack was informed that Bryan and Free Silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 were dead cocks in the nit.

CARNEGIE BARREL FOR BRYAN? Reputed Statement of the Ironmaster

The Washington Evening Times printed on Jan. 22 an article to the effect that Andrew Carnegie will contribute to William J. Bryan's campaign fund, the authority given for this statement being a Democratic Senator. The Evening Times is itself a Democratic paper. The article says in part:

"This Senator had a long talk with Mr. Carnegie during the Christmas holidays, and the multi-millionaire made some interesting assertions to the statesman. As firm a supporter as I am of the single gold standard, said Mr. Carnegie. I would be only too glad, if such a thing were possible, to see the fight of 1866 waged all over again this year, and I would give liberally to the Bryan campaign. Of course, the gold bill is going to become a law, and that will eliminate the currency as the most important issue of this year's campaign. If the Democrats will come out boldly against expansion, they need not be hard up for campaign funds. Whatever money is needed after they have exhausted their usual sources will be freely contributed by me. I would prefer to have Bryan in the White House with a Democratic Congress at his back to undo the work of currency reform than to see McKinley there with the power to hold the territory conquered from spain. negie during the Christmas holidays, and the power to hold the strike.

COUNT BONI'S REVENGE

TO BE SOUGHT IN COURT, NOT ON THE FIELD OF HONOR.

The "Figaro" Editor Hits at Castellane Again, This Time by Cable, and the Count Gets Back at Him the Same Way, Sparing No Expense and Threatening a Lawsuit.

The Count Boni de Castellane received a lespatch yesterday from Ferdinand de Rodays. lirector of the Figaro, the Paris newspaper which said that the Count was impoverished by speculation on the Bourse and was going to the United States to get more money. The director of the Figuro reasserted the truth of what he had said about the Count, and accused Castellane of base ingratitude. The Count made answer to the telegram from the editor in terms which, his friends say, will cause lots of editorial hair to be torn out by the roots in the Figure office. Here is the editor's letter to the count:

"Your denials and your menaces will change none of the facts which are now of public notoriety in Paris. If the Figure took notice of what is termed your discomflutre it was justifled therein by the campaign of defamation and insult which you have inspired without provocation in the paper which you control. I ope you will succeed in getting out of the affair, and on your return I reserve to myself the right to tell you what I think of 'disloyalty' and your attitude with regard to a journal and a journalist who had never been anything but kind to you and your wife, while you have

"FERDINAND DE RODAYS, Director of Figuro." The Count came down from his apartments at the Walderf-Asteria two hours after this telegram had been sent to him and handed his reply to the telegraph operator of the hotel. He listened while the operator sent the message, and seemed to enjoy hearing the words ticked off. He gave out a copy of his reply to the editor. It follows:

Rodays, Director ' Pigaro,' Rue Drouot, Parit: "I have just received the despatch which makes you so ridiculous and pitiable. It is in keeping with the 'public notoriety' which haracterizes the sheet which you direct in the interests of the vilest causes. In truth, you annoy me, and I shall withhold any further explanations until I see you in Paris upon my return from America about Feb. 15. I must say that every one should be highly edified by the absurd allegations you have made concerning me-made with a grand flourish after my leparture from France and when I was where I could not defend myself for nine days, and could not deny for that length of time that I had over speculated on the Bourse.

"You have had the bad taste to suggest that I seek redress from the Minister of Finance. The Figaro, having become the most corrupt and disreputable cosmopolitan newspaper, mainly through your fault, will now be compelled to pay damages to the amount of 100,000 francs, with interest. But this ought not to be hard on you, for you have a substantial basis in the fund which you collected for Mme. Klobb, but which she refused to accept.

"I think I am very reasonable in asking that amount of damages after the questionable campaign which you have conducted in France for the last two years. I implore you, dear M. de Rodays, to eccupy yourself with an attempt to resuscitate the Figaro, whose circulation and standing have been so seriously impaired, instead of medding with affairs which do not concern you.

"I have never inspired against you a camcould not defend myself for nine days, and "I have never 'inspired' against you a 'cam-paign of defamation and insult.' But it is quite natural that, as an honest man, I should re-gard you as a poltroon, who is not worth the ten louis which I am forced to expend in send-ten louis which I am to be the louis which is the source ing this message.

"Say what you will, no one will take you seriously. Until we meet.

"Comme de Castellane."

"Deputy."

"In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea, with a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and with a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and subjects to the U.S.A. As God goes marching on."

The Count was anxious that people on this side of the water should understand just how issued to the young the sold of the water should understand just how issued to the fund for Madame Klobb. The New Jersey Democrats cheered loudly. Col. Byran got into a cab and went to the Hoffman House, He will depart this morning at 0.55 for Harrisburg, Pa. He will return here early in February, and on Feb. 7 he will speak in Carnegie Hall and in Plainfield, N. J.

"You must not understand from the message of de Rodays that he means that I am the proprietor of a newspaper in Paris. He perhaps believes that I influence some one newspaper so that I control it, but that is not true, of course. I am glad to say that nearly all the newspapers of Paris except the Figaro have always been most friendly and considerate to me, and if I stand well with them I am proud of it."

The Count said that he and the Countess would probably go to Lakewood on Saturday to visit the family of George J. Gould. Mrs. Gould will give a musicale for the Castellanes on Feb. 10, two days before they return to Paris.

ROBBERY THAT WAS'NT SQUARED. Woman Who Negotiated With the Police for a Friend Lands in a Cell.

Jacob Sprague of Hempstead, L. I., met a roung woman on Broadway yesterday afternoon and accompanied her to a room at 358 West Thirty-fifth street. He went to the street and met Policeman Lane of the West Thirty-seventh street station to whom he told his story. Lane and another whom he told his story. Lane and another policeman went into the house. There they met Minule O'Brien, who called Lane aside. "The girl that turned the trick has skipped," she whispered to Lane, "but I found $19 on the floor of the room. There's $3 in it for each of you cops if you get rid of the country jake." Lane agreed to the proposition until the woman took the $19 from her stocking. Then he arrested her and locked her up as a suspicious person. Sprague said he had lost $30 in the house.

MOLINEUX TRIAL HALTED.

TENTH JUROR HAS A SHARP ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM.

Retrial Unless He Gets Well-Trial Was Adjourned Yesterday for One Day Only but at the Juror's House It Is Said That He Certainly Will Not Be Out To-day. Recorder Goff adjourned yesterday the trial of Roland B. Molineux for the murder of Mrs Katherine J. Adams because of the illness o

Manheim Brown the tenth juror. When the morning session was called to order at 10:30 o'clock the clerk called the roll and reported the juror's absence. The Ro-

"I have received a telegram from Mrs. Frown the wife of the tenth juror, in orming me that her husband is so ill as to be unable to leave his bed. I will show it to counsel." The Recorder passed the telegram over to the District Attorney who passed it to the defendant's counsel and the Recorder then said: "In the absence of any definite information from the physician who is attending Mr. Brown the Court will say that, from its information derived from the Captain of the Court Squad, it is not probable that Mr. Brown's illness will be serious or prolonged and the Court therefore deems it proper to adjourn the trial of the case until to-morrow morning at half-past 10 o'clock."

Juror Brown, it was learned later, had a bad attack of rheumatism. He had had a twinge or two of it once or twice during the trial and on Tuesday night as he was leaving the court he had a severe attack. He went home and went to bed, and his physician directed him to stay in bed yesterday.

It was said last night at his home, 210 West Forty-fourth street, that Mr. Brown can't come to court to-day.

"He is in a bad way" was the report given to The Sun reporter. "He is very feverish and is troubled by his rheumatism also. He is so ill that it would be simply suicidal for him to try to go to court to-morrow and there is no telling when he will be well enough to go."

Section 416 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which would be applicable in case Juror Brown's illness is long continued, reads as follows:

"If before the conclusion of the trial a juror from the physician who is attending Mr.

"If before the conclusion of the trial a juror becomes sick so as to be unable to perform his duty the Court may order him to be discharged and another jury to be then or afterward im-duty the Court may order him to be discharged and another jury to be then or afterward impanelled."

In the case of the People against Cancemi reported in 18 New York it was decided under this section "that trial must be had by twelve jurors and defendant cannot waive the right."

Mr. Brown's attack is said to be due in part at least to the long confinement in the court while the trial has been going on and to the bad ventilation of the court room. Yesterday was the seventieth day since the trial began and every day the court room has been crowded. The result has been that the air in the court room has been end of each session, and it has been necessary to raise the windows in the court room. This has been done whether the weather has been warm or cold, damp or dry. In addition to the raising of the windows, This window has been aired by means of an arrangement at the top of one of the windows. This window has been down from the top and a box-like affair built around it is supposed to cut off the draught. Nevertheless there is always a little draught from this window, and it blows right down on the jury box.

The adjournment yesterday was not unwelcome to either the court or the jury or the defence, all of whom are complaining of the strain of the constant grind of the trial.

CHICAGO CODDLES ST. LOUIS.

Drainage Canal-Dewey to Ride on It. CHICAGO, Jan. 24 .- A formal invitation to the Mayor and other officials and many leading citizens of St. Louis to come up "to inspect the Drainage Canal and have a general good time' will be mailed to-morrow. The belief is general that much of the opposition to the canal entertained by St. Louis men is due to a lack of knowledge regarding the real conditions and the invitation is extended with the hope that it will be accepted so that opportunity may be given to prove that the water in the Chicago River is not as black as it has been pictured, nor as dangerous to human life as the average St. Louis man now thinks it is. The Drainage Canal trustees and city officials are planning an entertainment on a large scale for their prospective St. Louis guests. There will be a trip by boat through the canal and river and a dinner to be followed by a ball. Speeches will be made by local spellbinders who are cal-culated to make their visiting listeners sorry they ever said anything derogatory of Chicago

WOMAN THIEF A PAL'S PREY.

Throng of Her Acquaintances in Court to Enjoy Her Debut in a New Role. Minnie Brooks was held in the West Fifty-fourth street police court yesterday in $1,000 bail for examination on the charge of stealing from Annie Rock, of 226 West Thirty-seventh street, jewelry which the Rock woman valued at $1,500. Both complainant and prisoner are Tenderioin pickpockets, whose pictures are in the rogues' gallery. They went out together for a drive in a cab several nights ago, winding up in a saloon in Seventh avenue. Some time in the course of the night the Rock woman missed her pins and rings and also her com-panion. The Brooks woman was arrested on Seventh avenue soon afterward. Those of their female acquaintances who didn't have to go to court as prisoners flocked there volun-tarily yesterday to enjoy the novelty of seeing one of their set appear in the role of complain-ant. The Age of Inquiry.

The present has been described as pre-eminently the century of inquiry.

The constant and universal question that is echoed from every side, is "Why?" Ask any of your friends why they prefer Van Houten's Cocoa to any other, and one will immediately tell you "it has the highest nutritive value;" another will reply "it is more easily digested and assimilated than other cocoas;" and a third will probably answer "it is perfect in flavor, and rich in stimulating healthy properties."

In reply to the question "Why?" The Lancet says:-"Van Houten's Cocoa yields a maximum proportion of the valuable food constituents of the bean. Why is it the best for children, for mothers, and for family use? Because it is rich in that digestible Albumen which nourishes the body, and in the Phosphates which build up bones and tissues; because it repairs waste; and also because you can get out of it more strength and nourishment than out of any other.

THE BROOKLYN REVIVAL.

Rev. Dr. Dixon Says It Is Specially Directed

Against Unitarianism. The Rev. Drs. Broughton and Pierson each took part in the noon-day revival service in Association Hall in Brooklyn yesterday and this arrangement will be continued for the remainder of the week. Next week Dr. Pierson will have charge of the downtown noon meeting and Dr. Broughton will be chief exhorter at similar meetings to be inaugurated in Williamsburg. This is a part of what Dr. Broughton said yesterday: "Every reformation that is not built on Jesus Christ will touch the bottom sooner or later. A minister in preaching the gospel has the right to bring it to bear on every phase of life.

right to bring it to bear on every phase of life, and I am trying to do it, and am not afraid of being cartooned as a sensationalist for Joing it.

"Jesus Christ is the only hope for the salvation of men. I reaffirm this morning that without Jesus Christ there is no hope outside of hell. He who denies that Christ is the Son of God calls Jesus Christ himself a liar, and casts away the only hope of salvation."

There was another immense gathering at the Central Baptist Church last night, Dr. Broughton making the chief address.

The Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Hanson Place Baptist Church, who is taking an active interest in the revival, declared yesterday that the movement was specially directed against Unitarianism. "If there are any Unitarians in my church," he said, "I would invite them to get out or else try to convert them."

Twenty-one Williamsburg clergymen met yesterday afternoon in the Lee Avenue Congregational Church and completed arrangements for extending the revival work in Brooklyn to that section of the borough. The Rev. John F. Carson presided. At the conclusion of the meeting the Rev. R. S. Dawson, the Secretary, stated that it had been decided to hold revival services in Williamsburg as suggested by the Central Committee in charge of the Brooklyn work.

HELD FOR KILLING HER CHILD. Woman in Jail in Hoboken on a Charge of Moman in Jail in Hoboken on a Charge of Infanticide.

Mrs. Eilen Wilcox of 56 Second street. Hoboken, was committed without bail to the Hudson County Jail yesterday by Acting Recorder Laverty on the charge of having caused the death of her infant child. The woman is known also as Mrs. Krane, or Krange, and Mrs. Smith. At 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning William Monsees of 115 Grand street told Police Commissioner Michael Lally that he had seen a dead child in Mrs. Wilcox's apartments. Monsees said that he met the woman in a saloon at First and Grand streets. Two policemen were sent to the house and found the body of a male child lying in a bed in a room on the third floor. Grand streets. Two policemen were sent to the house and found the body of a male child lying in a bed in a room on the third floor. The body was greatly discolored and there was a mark around the neck. Bloodstains were on the sheets. There was also a blood-stained towel on the washstand. A woman's garter which had been cut in two, was found in the bed.

Later the woman was found on the street and locked up at Police Headquarters. She told Acting Recorder Laverty yesterday morning that her child had died from convulsions. Monsees testified that the woman told him that the child had died on Tuesday morning. When he asked her why she did not report the death to the authorities she replied that she did not know what to do.

William Seip, landlord of the house where the woman lived, said that she rented the room on Jan. 13. She was with a man and gave her name as Mrs. Krane or Krange. The police records show that a woman named Mrs. Wilcox gave birth to a child in a lodging house at 312 Hudson street on Nov. 18. She then said that her husband had deserted her.

City Physician Arlitz said that the child's body bore evidences of hemorrhages from the nose and ears. An autopsy will be held.

CREDITORS OF E. J. WOOLSEY. They Want to Reopen the Settlement of His Will in Queens County.

Certain unpaid creditors of Edward J. Woolsey, formerly of Astoria, who died in November, 1895, are seeking through Surrogate Noble in the Queens County Surrogate's Court to have the settlement of the estate reopened in order that they may collect their unpaid bills. Mr. Woolsey left to his, wife, Kate T. Woolsey, all of his property. Mr. Woolsey inherited from his mother, Emily P. Woolsey several large tracts of land in Astoria, including the tract recently acquired by the Astoria Light, Heat and Power Company. Mr. Woolsey's first wife obtained a divorce, and Mr. Woolsey married the present Mrs. Woolsey, who was from Covington, Ky. Partly in fulfilment of an ante-nuptial agreement, it is sald, Mr. Woolsey, in February, 1894, deeded to his bride nearly all of his real estate holdings in Astoria, the consideration named being $10. Later Mrs. Woolsey conveyed a tract to the Casino Land Company, of which she is a Director, for $2,000,000, and a big tract was also conveyed to Mrs. Woolsey's brother, Robert J. Trumble, in consideration of his paying certain legacies made by Mr. Woolsey's mother in her will. The hearing which was begun at Jamaica yesterday, was continued. Woolsey, all of his property. 71ST MAN JABBED WITH A BAYONET, Accident Occurred at the Review Held by

Gen. Hawkins. As the Seventy-first Regiment was being reviewed at its armory on Tuesday night by Gen. H. S. Hawkins, U. S. A., retired, its brigade commander in the war with Spain, Private Sinclair Kuhn of Company G received a bayonet wound in the neck. The regiment stood onet wound in the neck. The regiment stood at right shoulder when the Colonel's voice rang out "Charge, bayonets!" In executing the order the man behind Kuhn jabbed him in the neck and almost knocked him off his feet. No one in the throng which was watching the review saw the mishap. Kuhn reeled for a moment, but soon straightened himself and tried to remain in his place. The pain was so great, however, that he had to retire. His wound was dressed by Surgeon E. T. T. Marsh. Marsh.
This is one of the rarest of accidents among soldiers. Some of the officers at the review said they had never heard of a similar case.

Since the retirement of Col. Alexis C. Smith om the command of the Twenty-third Regiment in Brooklyn, Col. William Cary Sanger has been most favorably discussed by the offi-cers as his probable successor. Yesterday Col. Sanger announced that as his home is now in oneida county he could not possibly accept the command of the regiment. Col. Willis L. ogden is now strongly supported for the place

LAND FOR NEW BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Map Filed Showing the Property to Be Taken for Approaches.

The Board of Public Improvements received from Bridge Commissioner Shea yesterday afternoon a map showing, in outline, the property which will have to be condemned for the towers, anchorage and intermediate sections of the proposed East River bridge between Brooklyn and Manhattan. According to the map, a large amount of valuable property will have to be acquired. The terminals of the bridge have already been located, the Manhattan terminal being at Pike slip and the Brook-will include the north end of the block bounded by Monroe, Cherry, Market and Pike streets; the north end of the block bounded by Pike slip, Cherry, Water and Market streets and the north end of the block bounded by Pike slip, Water, South and Market streets. Hecker's Flour mills occupy one of these blocks. The piers to be taken will be Nos. 40 and 41. Pier 40 is that of the New Bedford line and Pier 41 is used for a dump by the Department of Street Cleaning. The map was referred to the tope-graphical engineer. graphical engineer.

STRIFE IN THE ARCHIDEACONRY.

Movement Toward Incorporation Spoken of as "Real Estate Speculation." The first meeting this year of the Archeaconry of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Queens and Nassau counties was held yesterday afternoon in St. John's Church at Long Island City. The Right Rev. A. N. Littlejohn. Bishop of the Diocese of Long Island, presided. G. Webster Peck, Secretary to the Arch-deaconry and Chairman of the Executive Committee, read a report from his committee advocating the incorporation of the Archdeaconry under the laws of the State of New York, so that, as a corporation, it could acquire and hold title to real estate. This recommendation was made because of the frequent offers of gitts of property to the Archdeaconry, which could not be accepted, as the members did not know whether they could legally acquire title to property. Two of the members made speechs condemning such a proceeding as the incorporation of the Archdeaconry. They characterized the probable ontcome of such an action as "real estate speculation." A compromise was effected by the passing of a resolution providing that the Executive Committee make a further report at the next meeting, which will be held in April, and that property offered to the Archdeaconary, in the meantime, be accepted by the Rev. Henry B. Bryan, Archdeacon, to be held in trust by the Archdeaconry. acquire and hold title to real estate, Big Judgment for Old Long Island City Improvement Commission Employees. Supreme Court Justice Garretson, in Long awarding to eight employees of the old General Improvement Commission in Long Island City two years' salaries, with interest and costs, two years salaries, with inferest and costs, amounting in all to about $35,000. In his decision Justice Garretson set forth that the Improvement Commission was merged into the official government of New York city and that the claimants were still practically employees of the city, as they had never been discharged. The claimants are John A. Allen, chief draughtsman; Harry Hastings, James Robinson, John Monaghan, Joseph Graham, F. Cruger, William McNulty and Thomas Mara.

The condition of Mrs. Edward F. Croker. wife of the Fire Chief, was reported as considerably improved last night. The physicians said that the pneumonia with which she has been suffering for the last few days had not yet reached the crisis, however, and that she was by no means out of danger.
